

Parent involvement in school-related activities

October 1998

One of the National Education Goals calls for an increase in parent involvement in children's education. This involvement requires an active partnership between the parent and the school. Some schools have adopted practices or policies that encourage parents to become more involved in their children's school activities and events. These practices give parents the opportunity to actively participate in their children's education and encourage their children to participate in school activities and events.

- In 1996, parents of more than 80 percent of students reported attending a general meeting or a scheduled meeting with their child's teacher. Sixty-six percent of students had parents who reported attending a school event, while 40 percent had parents who reported volunteering or serving on a school committee.
- Parents of black and Hispanic students were more likely than parents of white students to help their children with homework three or more times a week.
- Parents' participation in school activities, such as attending general meetings or school events and volunteering at school, was associated with their educational attainment. As parents' educational attainment increased, so did their rates of participation in school activities.
- Parents of children who lived in households with two biological or adoptive parents were more likely than parents of children who lived in households with one biological or adoptive parent to attend general school meetings or school events, act as a volunteer, or serve on a school committee.
